UC Davis Arboretum Outdoor Education Program

Guidelines for Your Visit to the UC Davis Arboretum
Below are some guidelines for you and your class to follow during your visit.

NAME TAGS, GROUPS, AND BEHAVIORAL GUIDELINES:
The Arboretum field program experience is a wonderful, hands-on, educational experience for children in a unique outdoor setting. To help better facilitate students’ active participation during the program, we ask that you divide your class into groups of ten, each with at least one adult chaperone. Have each student wear a nametag so the tour leaders can interact with the students by name.

It is important to respect and protect the environmental and educational resources the UC Davis Arboretum provides. Our basic behavioral guidelines are:
- remain on the established paths
- clean up all garbage
- be respectful of all plants, trees, animals, and each other.
Please do not take any natural item, however small, from the Arboretum unless you receive special permission from the tour leader.

SNACKS AND RESTROOM:
Please allow time for students to eat a snack and use the restroom if necessary before the tour—this will enhance everyone’s concentration and enjoyment of the tour! If students are accustomed to a snack time that occurs during the scheduled tour time, please allow the students to eat their snacks just before the tour begins.
